

VETS' REUNION AFTER 47 YEARS

They Helped Blow Rebel Ram Albemarle Nearly Half Century Ago

A notable reunion took place in this city last week when Levi Woodbury Lord of Northwest street, entertained Daniel G. George of Bradford. Both were members of Lieut. Cushing's expedition that destroyed the rebel ram Albemarle, and this was their first meeting since that time, 47 years ago.

Of the 15 who volunteered for the tarpaulin. He was subjected to intense heat and was the only one of the engineers and firemen assigned to the launch that was able to remain below the canopy.

At one time Mr. Lord notified Commander Cushing that the steam pressure was so high that the engine would soon blow off and for fear of alarming the rebels a man was sent to hold the safety valve down. After being subjected to the intense heat during the passage up the river, Mr. Lord was ordered overboard by the acting ensign of the expedition, William L. Howard, and the effects of the icy water produced brain fever and rendered him unable to accompany the expedition on the following night, when the destruction of the ram was accomplished.

HAS A FINE RECORD

Michael E. Long of Board of Managers of N. H. Soldiers' Home in Many Battles

Michael E. Long, who succeeds the late Marcus M. Collis as a member of that few, if any veterans in New Hampshire Soldiers' Home at Tilton, has taken the oath of office for his new duties.

It is said among Grand Army men that few if any veterans in New Hampshire possess a more remarkable record of gallantry and splendid service than that contributed by Mr. Long in preserving the union of states. He as a boy enlisted in Company K, Second New Hampshire volunteers, Aug. 27, 1861, when the first call for troops was issued. With other short-term enlisted men he was sent to the rendezvous at Fort Constitution, and when it became evident that the rebels were not going to be swept into the Gulf of Mexico so easily as anticipated he enlisted with the three-year soldiers.

Capt. William O. Sides, who was invalided at the expiration of the short enlistment, was succeeded in command of the company eventually by James Block of Exeter, who with Mr. Long is one of the few men living who survived the ordeals that beset the company in the Army of the Potomac. Gen. Gilman A. Marston, the famous congressman who was elevated to the colonelcy when he decided to fight rather than talk for the country, was in command of the corps.

At Boston the men were banqueted by the Sons of New Hampshire, and at New York regimental colors were presented by the faithful women. When Washington was reached the company was ordered to camp off Seventh street for drill under West Pointers.

Mr. Long's first participation in battle was at the first Bull Run. He recalls the failure of General Patterson to stop Beauregard and the fatal mistake of the Union leaders who assumed that Beauregard's force that reinforced Johnson to be reinforcements for the Union army. Mr. Long's company was defending a battery when Colonel Coughlin's Sixty-ninth regiment charged the woods and when Ellsworth's Five Zouaves were repulsed with frightful loss. He recalls the arrival of Blenker's brigade. He and a comrade were carrying a comrade named Horton, who was taken prisoner.

When McClellan began the reorganization of the army Mr. Long's company with the First and Eleventh Massachusetts and Twenty-sixth Pennsylvania were assigned to fighting Joe Hooker. He then participated with Hooker at Seven Pines, Fair Oaks, Seven Days, Harrison's Landing, Malvern Hill, Bristow Station, Williamsburg, Poplar Hill, Yorktown, Second Bull Run and finally Fredericksburg.

The pestilence that followed the battles of the peninsula and in Virginia so affected Mr. Long that he said he would have sacrificed one of his arms to return home. A member of another company found his knapsack on a field of battle. The knapsack contained a picture of a girl and letters received by Mr. Long from a young woman whom he knew in this city. The soldier wrote to the name of the girl contained in the letters that Mr. Long had expired on the field of battle, and that he was a suitor for her.

Mr. Long's name was suggested to Governor Bass and the council by Councilor Thomas Entwistle, a lifelong friend, who also has a splendid war record. Mr. Long and Councilor Entwistle fall to agree on the merits of McClellan and Grant, under whom they both served. The former was impressed by McClellan's skill and his declaration that it was murder to sacrifice an unnecessary life in battle. Councilor Entwistle defends the martial Grant. Both agree that a man named Lee made their existence unpleasant.

WITH THE SPORTS

Some Items of Interest to Local Followers

The weather conditions on Saturday was a great disappointment to the members of both the U. S. 33 North Carolina and Fort McKinley football teams. The game played at Portland two weeks ago demonstrated that the two teams are quite evenly matched. The supporters of both teams are anxious to have the question of supremacy settled and hope the game will be played in this city.

At Exeter there will be a game on Saturday between the Exeter and Princeton 15 elevens, while the high school eleven will play Sanborn seminary at Kingston Wednesday afternoon and Portsmouth high in this city Saturday afternoon. There are also three class games in the Phillips academy series. Monday the seniors and the lower middle school meet. Wednesday the juniors and the lower middle school, and Friday the upper middle school and the lower middle school.

Jimmy McAleer, the former Washington manager, who has cast his lot with the Boston Americans for next season, is anxious to get George Stovall, Cleveland first baseman, for the Red Sox team. It is understood that Stovall will not be with the Naps next year and he would make a great man for the Boston team. The team was handicapped during the past season by the lack of a hard hitting first baseman, to take Jake Stahl's place, and now that Stovall is to leave Cleveland, the Boston management may have a chance to purchase him.

Jimmy McAleer, who will assume the presidency of the Red Sox on Jan. 1, has about decided to take the team to Hot Springs, Ark., for next spring's training. The Boston club has an interest in grounds in that place, and McAleer thinks well of it as a training camp. He will probably send his pitchers along very early, but may not make the rest of the trip as long as it has been of recent years. The matter is practically decided, although it has not been officially announced.

The football surprise of the year so far was the victory by the Army eleven over Yale Saturday. While the contest was expected to be a hard one for the Blue, a defeat was something not thought of. The Army is proving a real Jonah for the New Haven eleven as last year they turned the Elis down in a decisive manner.

Eddie Hart, the former Exeter star and now captain of the Princeton eleven, has settled his trouble with the Tiger faculty and is eligible to play on the team again. Scholarship difficulties are reported as the reason for keeping Hart out of the games played this season. Hart is a wonderful defensive player and his return to the gridiron will be a great help to the Tiger eleven at this stage of the season with all the hard games coming.

Harry Davis, the captain of the Athletics, does not mince words when he accuses Hug Jennings, the Detroit manager as being the cause of the spiking of Frank Baker. Davis claims that McGraw admitted when Baker was spiked for the first time by Snodgrass, that Jennings told him the Athletics third sacker was a quitter and to go at him feet first. Of course it is to be expected that Jennings would like to see the Giants win out, and he has two reasons for feeling that way about it. One is that himself and McGraw played together on the old Baltimore Orioles and have been great chums ever since. The other is, that Hugie is undoubtedly sore on the Mack men because of the fact that they beat out his team for the honors in the American league. Jennings may have told McGraw that Baker was afraid of the base runners and that by going into the bag hard, the Giants could steal third very easily. But it is very hard to make any one believe that Hugie told Muggsy to have his men cut up the hard hitting third baseman. Regardless of what statements Jennings may have made to McGraw Davis is showing very poor judgment

DR. MCCARTHY GIVEN JEWEL

Nashua, Oct. 23--Forresters of America and invited guests to the number of 1000 attended a meeting this afternoon to witness the bestowal of a past grand chief ranger's jewel on Dr. Thomas A. McCarthy of this city. The festivities were held in O'Donnell Memorial Hall on High street.

He introduced as the first speaker Mayor William H. Barry, who spoke in high terms of Dr. McCarthy. Then Court Marquette degree team arrayed as Indians, gave a war dance. Charles H. Desmarais was chief and the others were Albert Oulette, Charles Boucher, Fred Gravel, Louis Dionne, Peter Maynard and Emil Belanger.

Grand Chief Ranger Michael J. Dugan of Manchester formally presented Dr. McCarthy the jewel which was voted at the Grand Court at Exeter in May and the recipient thanked the assemblage.

Theodore Hodge, chairman of the joint committee, presided. He said that Court Indian Head, although not the largest court in the jurisdiction, had given the order three grand chief rangers, one of whom has been Mayor of the city.

"The Relation of Jesus Christ to Outcasts" was the subject of the sermon delivered by the Rev. Harold M. Folsom at St. John's church on Sunday morning, this being the seventh in a series of sermons concerning the relation of Jesus Christ to certain groups of people whose characteristics are found in any age. At the evening service in the chapel the rector had as his theme "Jesus Christ's Power of Renewal." Miss Folsom rendered "My King," by Jynès, as a vocal solo.

WORKMAN INJURED IN NEW BANK BUILDING

William Smith, age 60, of Brockton, foreman carpenter on the New Hampshire National Bank building, fell from the second story of the building on Saturday afternoon and was seriously injured.

Mr. Smith was working on the second floor when he missed his footing and fell 20 feet, striking heavily on his head and shoulder. He was removed in the ambulance to the hospital where Dr. Taylor found that he had fractured his right shoulder blade and was suffering from concussion of the brain. Sunday night he was reported as somewhat improved, but still on the dangerous list.

AN INTERESTING STUDY.

"The Social Aims of Jesus" Discussed at the North Congregational Chapel on Friday Evening.

At the Friday evening chapel meetings of the North Congregational church there is to be occasionally a series of readings and discussions from the book entitled "Christianity and the Social Crisis" by Walter Rauschenbusch, Professor of Church History in Rochester Theological Seminary. The subject last Friday evening was "The Social Aims of Jesus."

There is something about this book that brings a new and delightful effluence to the Christian faith. As we read it there seems to roll away as into the dim past, or into oblivion, the old dogmatic, dark and confusing methods that brought sadness and fear into the theology of the days of long ago and far up into the nearer periods of modern reclamation.

Jesus Christ comes to us as a man as well as the inspired apostle of God; and what we learn from this discussion of his character speaks clearly to our own human nature as one man speaks to another.

In the previous chapter what we might designate as the conception of Christianity during the progress of Jewish history, which tells of the old time prophets and their prophecies, up to the times when all that had been promised and sought for came to fruition; and when Jesus was born the new dispensation came to its birth marking the turning point for a new world of Christian history.

One striking point in the book so far as the reading has gone, is that it does not give any new theories, and offers no new system of theology but only brings into the limelight features of the New Testament teachings that may have escaped our observations, but which are of great importance and usefulness when they are brought to us by such a scholarly student as the author of this book. Thus we take a new (or rather a more comprehensive) view of the life and work of Jesus. The Bible may be a "sealed book" in many respects, to the casual or even the ordinary constant reader, inasmuch as skimming the surface does not sound the depths of sacred writings; and reading of the doings, sayings and precepts of Jesus does not reveal him to us as one walking the streets and living the social life—until some one who has studied the history and characteristics of the times brings to our notice the hidden facts that present Jesus as he appeared to his contemporaries. In this consists the great value of the chapter upon "The Social Aims of Jesus."

"Ye are the salt of the earth," says Jesus, and the saying applies equally to the Christianity of the newer as well as the older time. And that we are approaching a social crisis seems to be an acknowledged fact. Who can foretell the happenings of this twentieth century?—and to whom will the civilized world look when events culminate? Christianity has brought the world to what it is. And Christianity alone will keep it in steady progress through all coming vicissitudes. Verily we have faith that it will avail to rescue and save the world. The salt must not lose its savor!

Not that Jesus was a social reformer or a political economist of the present type. He was a teacher of morality insinuating into the souls of his followers those principles that would lead men to take a proper view of sociology and political economy, and thus to make them the dependences of every age in critical times. Thus Christianity is the hope of the world when the times are ripe for the issue of events.

John was the forerunner of the Christ—the connecting link between the old time prophets and the new religion which they promised. He announced the Christ when Jesus appeared in manhood among his people, and, in clasping hands with John Jesus joined himself and his mission with the prophets and prophecies of the past.

It appears that the object of the teaching of Jesus was the establishment of the kingdom of God in the world. His efforts were not so much (indeed they were quite limited) for individual work and effort. His mission was first to the Jews, and then to all the world through them, to bring all mankind into the great Kingdom. We do not understand that Kingdom to have particular reference to any time or place. It is as much now and here as it is in another or future state of existence. Jesus labored to extend the Kingdom, and seems to have left the individual work to his followers. This appears to be the most reasonable view to take of the phrase "The Kingdom of God," but the author informs us that "this is the point on which scholars are most at odds." "Like the old prophets, Jesus believed that God was the real creator of the Kingdom; it was not set up by man-evolution." "All the teaching of Jesus and all his thinking centered about the hope of the Kingdom of God. The fundamental virtue in his ethics was love, because love is the society making quality." Jesus was very sociable. He was always falling into conversation with people, sometimes in calm disregard to the laws of propriety.

He partook of the indifference or hostility of the old time prophets

Captain Dalton, Whose Return To Play Has Been Received With Delight by Annapolis Men

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23.—Followers of the navy football eleven are highly elated over return of Captain Dalton, who has been out of the game for some time an account of injuries received during practice. The middie's leader is one of the greatest fullbacks ever turned out at the Naval academy, and his educated toe has won many games for Annapolis during the past two seasons. With Dalton back in the regular lineup the team is stronger than ever.

to ritual religion. He used the Temple as a place to meet men. He valued it as a house of prayer and fiercely resented the intrusion of the money-making spirit within it. He would tolerate nothing that hallowed wrong, not even religion.

Jesus evidently felt that it was dangerous to be wealthy, from the act that wealth is apt to grow stronger than the man who owns it. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." When one builds his life on the theory that "a man's life consisteth in the abundance of the things that he possesseth," he is lost to the Kingdom of God. Covetousness is a common and yet often an unconscious sin.

The social affinities of Jesus were with the poor and the oppressed, as were those of the Old Testament prophets. He was a man of the common people and he never deserted their cause, as many others had done.

Jesus said, "I came not to bring peace, but a sword." Thus was his mission revolutionary. His attack on the religious leaders and authorities of his day was of revolutionary boldness and thoroughness. He called the ecclesiastical leaders hypocrites, blind guides who fumbled in their casuistry and everywhere missed the decisive facts in teaching right and wrong. Their pity was no pity; their law was inadequate; they harmed the men they wanted to convert. Christ's ideal of society involved the abolition of rank and the extinction of those badges of rank in which former inequality was incarnated. The only title to greatness was to be distinguished services at cost to self. Nevertheless he respected the law and the rulers and did his duty as a citizen. But he was not a child of this world. He did not revere the men it called great; he did not accept its customs and social usages as final; his moral conception did not run along the grooves marked out by it. When he saw that his nation had chosen the evil way and was drifting toward the rocks that would destroy it, unutterable sadness filled his soul, but he never abandoned his faith in the final triumph of the Kingdom of God for which he lived. For the present the cross; but beyond the cross the Kingdom of God.

This reviewer quite inadequately has chapter of a book that will give thought and profit to one who will make it a study.

A NEW MEDICAL COMPOUND.

The compounding of Cadum was not the result of mere chance or accident, but the outcome of patient investigations and experiments by a studious chemist, who was convinced that the old method of taking internal medicines to cure external disease was wrong. He found that an extract from the Juniperus Oxycedrus tree possessed wonderful curative properties on the skin tissues. His extract he combined with other antiseptic, healing compounds, which resulted in the product Cadum. Sufferers from eczema and other skin troubles find almost instant relief after the first application of Cadum. It stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and is to be used when the skin is irritated, inflamed or diseased. Cadum is different from anything else, and has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from distressing, stubborn and disfiguring skin diseases. Many letters have been received from people saying they had been called "miraculous." These letters prove that a great remedy Cadum is. It is good for eczema, sores, eruptions, pimples, rashes, chafing, scaly skin and itching piles. 10c and 25c, all druggists.

FOOTBALL GAMES IN HEAVY RAIN

High School Swamp Rochester High
Wisconsin and Tennessee No
Score.--North Carolina and Fort
McKinley Game Postponed.

The high school team again demonstrated on Saturday afternoon that they have one of the best school teams in the state, when in a pouring rain, and on a mud soaked field, they defeated the Rochester high 49 to 0.

The win, also practically assures the local team of the championship of the league, as they have constantly outplayed the other teams in every game. The team show the advantage of the coaching of Curtis Matthews, and are indebted in no small way to the practice given them by the team of the U. S. S. Tennessee, who several days a week line up against the school boys and given hard, fast practice, the kind that makes football.

The game Saturday was played under the worst possible conditions. There was a heavy rain the greater part of the game, and the ground was muddy and covered with pools of water. One game had been played before they took the field and it was mud everywhere. Under these conditions their game was remarkable. They held on to the slippery ball well and handled punts well, and were fast down the field, especially the two ends, McCarthy and Hennessey, who played a brilliant game, following the ball very close and tackling hard and sure.

Ralph Brackett ran the team finely, and played his position in great shape, and contributed two touchdowns to the score. Jenkins was also very conspicuous at his position at left tackle and he carried the ball in some spectacular runs and scored three touchdowns. The entire back field played fine ball, while the line held at all times and the visitors did not make a single first down.

FOUR GENERATIONS
 Recently Assembled at the Home of Mayor Daniel W. Badger

An interesting four-generation party was recently assembled at the home of Mayor Daniel W. Badger. The eldest of the group was Mrs. Nancy S. Badger, aged 78, widow of David D. Badger, who was a noted shipbuilder, and built many of the clipper-ships that made the Piscataqua river famous in the days of wooden sailing craft. Mrs. Badger makes her home in Greenland, with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Schumann. The second generation was represented by Mayor Daniel W. Badger, who was born in this city Aug. 18, 1865, and is now serving his first term as Mayor of Portsmouth. He married Miss Edith M. Whidden and their family consists of five daughter and three sons.

The third generation was represented by Mrs. Dora Shaw, wife of Edward C. Shaw. The fourth generation was represented by Miss Edna Stanwood Shaw, aged 11 months.

SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN THE HAIR
 Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to old-fashioned methods of gathering the herbs and making the tea. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, containing sage in the proper strength with the addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorized druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented. Don't neglect your hair. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and notice the difference after a few days' use. This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agent G. E. Philbrick, 35 Congress street.

SPECIAL JURORS DRAWN

William T. Entwistle was drawn for the petit jury from Ward 1, Fred V. Velt from Ward 2, and John Parlin from Ward 4 at a special drawing Saturday afternoon at City hall. They will fill vacancies in the jury.

Mr. George informed his old comrades that on the second night's trip up the river inquiry was made by some member of the party as to the whereabouts of the engineer of the previous night and assistant engineer Stolesbury replied:

"He may be dead now; the doctor said there was but a slight chance for him." Lieut. Cushing, when told of his having been ordered overboard with the rest of the party, expressed surprise.

While Mr. Lord participated in the first night of the expedition and nearly lost his life he has never received any recompense from the Government for his bravery and an effort is to be made to have Congressman Stolesbury introduce a special act in his behalf at the coming session of Congress, as his friends think that justice has been done him.

Mr. George, the other survivor, born in Palisado, N. H., July 7, 1833, the son of Lyman P. and Eliza S. George. When 14 years of age he ran away from home and shipped on the whaling ship Marcia of New Bedford. He followed the sea up to 1861.

On Sept. 10, 1861, he enlisted in the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry and was raised to orderly sergeant of Co. D. He was in the battle of Antietam and 21 other general engagements. He was taken prisoner at Aldie, when 50 out of 54 of his company were killed, wounded or taken prisoners. He was taken to Libby Prison then to Castle Thunder and finally to Belle Isle. From the latter place he escaped, having induced his guard to run away with him.

He re-enlisted the Army, but shortly afterward asked for a transfer to the Navy, which was granted. While on the receiving ship at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, a draft was made for the United States ship of war "Thetis," and his chum Edward J. Houghton, was one of the men selected. In order to be with him he exchanged transfer papers with William Smith. He was made coxswain of Lieut. Walker's boat and while visiting the flagship on one occasion, he by accident heard Lieut. Cushing telling of his intended raid, and that he was deficient in the number of his men.

Capt. Arnold on learning of his request to volunteer granted both him and his chum Houghton full permission to become members of the expedition. George and Houghton were stationed in the bow of the launch to manage the torpedo. The torpedo was attached to the end of a vertical spar which stood in the bow of the launch and could be detached therefrom by a line when it would float on the water.

After it had been set and struck the ram it was exploded.

Mr. George has a gold headed cane presented to him by the members of Gen. Mudge post, 171, G. A. R., of Merrimack, in commemoration of the event.

Since the death of his wife he makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Bowen, in Bradford, Mass.

OPPORTUNITY.
A man must train himself for his opportunity, for a great occasion is worth to a man exactly what his antecedents have enabled him to make of it.—Matthews.

NO REASON TO COMPLAIN

To the close observer the merchants and citizens of Portsmouth have no reason to complain. The past summer has been an exceptionally good one at the neighboring seashore resorts and our citizens have benefited either directly or indirectly. At the present time practically everyone, who desires work is employed and the city wears an air of prosperity that very few cities of its size in New England can claim.

Our merchants should, however, reach out more for the business of the towns adjacent to this city. It is close proximity there is between fifteen and twenty thousand persons in the towns on both sides of the river and efforts should be made to bring their trade to Portsmouth. Let's all work together and endeavor to bring to this city what rightfully belongs to it.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS

Evidently, those in charge of the World's series of baseball, were not in close touch with Old Prob, even if they are accused of having been associated with the ticket speculators.

That was surely a fine recognition that the late Paul A. Merrill of Newburyport made of the services of a clerk in his employ, when he remembered him in his will to the extent of $5000, representing $100 for each year of service.

The government's experiments with airplanes now provide pleasant occupation for deserving young men in a way that offers sad contrast to the experiences of that sincere but disappointed student, Dr. Langley.

Customs change and eloping with a chauffeur is no longer a sure way for a woman to get herself referred to as "a beautiful young society girl."

Mr. Bryan's announcement that he does not expect to be president will strike many democrats as indicating that he is bracing up as a forecaster.

The steel trust has evidently determined to apply its own blue pencil instead of willing for attention that might be less sympathetic.

The greatest objection to be raised against the Jury System is the premium it appears to put on the intelligence of the man who does not read a newspaper or form opinions.

With the aid of his well-trained men and lack builders it is probable that Colonel Goethals will break all records in the matter of dry dock construction by building two great docks at Colon and having them completely equipped and ready for the reception of ships patronizing the Panama Canal by July, 1913. An idea of establishing a great naval station at the Atlantic entrance of the Panama has been abandoned, as President Taft strongly disapproves the plan, and Colonel Goethals has now been instructed to build instead a shipyard for docking and repairing vessels of the merchant marine, although, of course, this will also be available for naval uses. The plant will include not only drydocks but machine shops and coal wharves. It was at first contemplated to have the drydock built by the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Navy Department, but Rear Admiral Halliday, the chief of the bureau, felt that Colonel Goethals was in a better position to undertake the work.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Railroad Regulation as a Model of Progress.

The experience with regulation of railroads seems to indicate the course most likely to be followed ultimately in the management of the public's relations to the industrial combinations.

The Sherman act was applied to the railroads, through the joint traffic, the trans-Missouri traffic and the Northern Securities decisions, before it was effectively applied to the industries. It may fairly be said that no substantial results flowed from the effort to enforce competition between railroads.

The Northern Securities Company was indeed disintegrated, but business relations and traffic conditions were not materially altered. The Northern Pacific remained a "Hill road," and continued in close community of interests with the Great Northern. If it had not remained a "Hill road," if the decree for distribution of Northern Securities assets had favored Harriman instead of Hill, then the Northern Pacific would have become a "Harriman road."

It would have been transferred from one huge combination to another, but it would have remained in a combination, and the substantial purpose of fundamentally changing conditions in the public interest would have been accomplished.

In the long run, the effort to break up great railroad systems through the Sherman act has failed. The courts have at length decided the great "Harriman system case" in favor of the roads, and the aggregation that Harriman's genius built around the Union Pacific continues a mighty force in the railroad world, with the acquiescence of the highest tribunal.

There is no suggestion of such a radical policy as would disintegrate any of the big systems. What is yet more important and significant, there is no longer public demand for such disintegration. The railroad problem is looked upon as substantially solved, and by the process of regulation.

In all probability, the treatment of the industries will at length follow similar lines. The demand for modification of the Sherman act, or for establishment of a supplemental code for regulation, is gaining strength very much as the movement developed which brought the healthy and truly progressive railroad legislation of 1906 and 1910.—Boston Journal.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY
Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

Portsmouth Navy Yard.—On Tuesday afternoon, the workmen employed at our Navy Yard, were requested to meet at twenty minutes before one o'clock for the purpose of making arrangements for giving the amount of one day's work each to the Maine and New Hampshire soldiers now at the seat of war; the money raised thereby to be appropriated to the purchase of blankets, stockings, etc., for those who have left all the comforts of home, and some forth to lay down their lives for their country's salvation.

Accordingly about twelve hundred assembled at the time appointed, and a most enthusiastic and patriotic meeting was held, which resulted in the choice of Charles Stimpson, Esq., as a committee to see that the money thus raised be properly appropriated. Thus not less than two thousand dollars will be used, which will go far towards furnishing the means to make our soldiers comfortable during the coming winter. It need hardly be said that any like call meets with that is financing the revolution comes from Chinese in the United States.

But official America is friendly with China; has befriended her when she stood alone and defenseless; has returned excessive indemnity; has induced nominal if not actual adherence by Europe and Japan to an open-door policy of trade within the empire; and is on record as favoring the preservation rather than the partition of the vast domain. It will be to the United States therefore, rather than to Japan, that both parties in China will turn now for counsel and sympathy; the officials in Pekin for such action as will induce the powers to hold off while the rebels are being dealt with, and the revolutionists for such approval by public opinion as they expect from a people that came into national existence by formal revolution and by casting off a dynasty.

Each party is likely to be satisfied. American public opinion seems to be as naturally with the foes of the Manchurian rulers and with the advocates of Chinese self-rule as it was with the Japanese, when Russia attempted to crowd the orientals of Nippon off the map. Washington officials likewise will doubtless cast their weight at Pekin with those diplomats who will judge that the domestic issue, grave as it is, shall not be made the excuse for exploitation of China by any covetous neighbors. So long as both parties to the strife protect foreigners and their property, the issue of foreign intervention is not likely to arise. If protection ceases, and there be any recurrence of the anti-foreign feeling, then the United States also can be counted upon to insist that China shall not be made to suffer unduly.

Acceptance by Yuan Shi-Kai of the rule over the revolting central provinces no doubt was conditioned on pledges of reform at Peking, should he restore order, though at the expense of defeat of the revolutionists with whom he has much in common. But events may prove that not even he can check the storm or control the troops with which the victory must be won, if won at all. He has played the game of moderation and opportunism so long that neither side appears fully to trust him, and his second alliance with the dynasty in its hour of need can scarcely endear him to the revolutionists. With whose ultimate time he has considerable sympathy but whose methods he cannot approve. It is to be hoped that he has no reason to suspect the loyalty of the troops with which he sets forth from Peking to down the rebellion, for he cannot win this issue by homilies on moderation in reform.—Christian Science Monitor.

KITTERY LETTER

Kittery, Oct. 23.

Nineteen members from Riverside Lodge, I. O. O. F., went to Springvale Friday evening to attend the York County convention under the auspices of Friendship lodge, No. 69, of that place. The party left in automobiles, three in number, and arrived there about eight o'clock, too late to take the parade but in time for the lodge session. The first degree was exempted by Laconia lodge, No. 44, of Biddeford, and Eagle lodge, No. 7, of North Berwick, in competition for a silver cup, which was won by the Biddeford lodge. The full program was as follows: Band contest, 8:30 by Sanford Mills Band; Address of Welcome from Springvale Board of Trade, by Dr. O. F. Brigham; reply to address of welcome; exemption of first degree in competition; five minute speeches by visiting brothers; presentation of cups. The Kittery party left there at about 2 in the morning, and arrived at the hall at about 5. They report a good time.

Riveride Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 72, meets this evening and the third degree will be worked.

TEACHERS' CONVENTION ELECTS OFFICERS

Pass Resolutions Endorsing President Taft's Treaty---Other Business.

The annual convention of the New Hampshire Teachers' association was held at Concord, N. H., on Saturday morning, and gave encouragement to a close Saturday morning session, with the election of officers, the transaction of the business of the session, the report of the educational council by Superintendent E. W. Butterfield of Dover, and an address on "American Schools and School Men," illustrated, by B. M. Sheridan, superintendent of schools of Lawrence, Mass.

Officers Elected.
The officers for the ensuing year are:
President, Harlan M. Bisbee, Exeter.
Vice-president, Supt. Joseph H. Blaisdell, Laconia.
Secretary, Miss Elsie D. Fairbanks, Manchester.
Treasurer, Principal John Gault, Manchester.
Members of the executive committee: Supt. William H. Slayton, Frank W. Lakeman, Nashua.
Members of the educational council, Joseph W. Hobbs of Portsmouth, Miss Elizabeth Ayer of Concord.

The Resolutions.
The resolutions adopted commended the executive committee for the programme given, endorsed the state child labor law and the work of the department of public instruction in its enforcement, recommended that high schools be encouraged in efforts to minister to "local needs and various life vocations," and expressed belief that extension of courses in agriculture, domestic and mechanical arts is desirable.

The interests of public school education in New Hampshire "demanding the closest possible articulation between the high schools and the two colleges," is was recommended that

INDIGESTION GOES IN FIVE MINUTES

Heartburn, Dyspepsia, Gas and Other Stomach Misery Vanish

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Brudate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is Indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or Indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why Diapepsin always relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or Indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach Misery.

Get some Pape's Diapepsin now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

NEW SUBMARINE SUBMERGENCE RECORD.

Salmon, with Full Crew, Remains at Depth of 144 Feet for 15 Minutes.

All records for submergence by submarine boats of the United States Navy with crews on board are believed to have been broken by the Salmon, now operating in Narragansett Bay. It was learned that a few days ago the Salmon, with nineteen sailors and two officers on board, descended in Narragansett Bay to a depth of 144 feet, remained there for ten or fifteen minutes, and reached the surface in safety. The best previous record was the submergence at a depth of 125 feet by the Octopus.

THE STATE TEAM

The "state team" match was concluded, Saturday morning, when the last nine men were put over the skirmish run. Of these nine, but one made a place on the state team. That was Sergt. Joseph A. Thompson of Company F, Manchester, whose 53 points on the run gave him an aggregate of 157. The state team now stands, in order in which they won their places, as follows: Priv. Ernest C. Baker of Keene, Capt. Stephen E. Hall of Concord, Sergt. Dennis J. Cullity of Manchester, Capt. Walter C. Ellis of Keene, Corporal Otis A. Mercer of the Peterborough Cavalry, Capt. Charles R. Blake of Nashua, Lieut. Clarence P. Bodwell of Portsmouth, Major Ross L. Piper of Laconia, Priv. Howard Brown of Concord, Sergt. Joseph A. Thompson, Corp. James A. Brown of Keene, Mechanic George R. Bowman of Laconia.

GAME IN DOUBT

The Fort McKinley football team left for Boston at 1:42 o'clock Sunday afternoon and this afternoon will meet an eleven representing the Boston artillery district. The members of the Fort McKinley team are allowed liberty up to 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, and a number of the team stated before leaving that it was very improbable that they would be able to meet the North Carolina eleven here on Tuesday afternoon.

KLAW & ERLANGER'S BEN-HUR.

New and Greater Presentation of General Wallace's Mighty Work to be Staged at the Boston Theatre Next Month.

With all of the opulent splendor of the Orient, the magnificence of Rome in her most glorious days, and the beauty of tropical settings, "Ben-Hur" will return to the Boston Theatre, Boston, on Thursday evening, November 2nd, for a limited engagement. Klaw & Erlanger, the owners of this most wonderful piece of theatrical property, have this season given it a production which in magnitude and spectacular grandeur will outdistance any production ever before seen on the American stage or perhaps in the theatres of any country. It had been the intention of Klaw & Erlanger to make this beautiful revival of General Lew Wallace's classic at their home playhouse, the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, but the great success of the musical comedy, "The Pink Lady," at that house where it is now in its ninth month, makes it inadvisable to transfer that attraction, and Boston will thus have the first opportunity to look upon the exquisite settings and the gorgeous pageantry of the new production. The magnitude of the scenic settings is of such a nature there are only four theatres in America with stages large enough on which to place the equipment. These theatres are the historic Boston Theatre in Boston, the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York, the beautiful Forrest Theatre in Philadelphia, and the great Auditorium Theatre in Chicago. Only three of these cities, however, will have an opportunity of seeing this new and wonderful production of "Ben-Hur," Boston, New York and Philadelphia, for the Chicago Grand Opera Company will occupy the Auditorium for so long a time it will be impossible to take "Ben-Hur" to Chicago before it is transferred to London for presentation at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, Easter Monday, April 8, 1912, arrangements to that end having been made by Mr. Marc Klaw when he was abroad last summer. The production which will be seen here will be taken to London intact, and the people of the English metropolis will have an opportunity to see how a spectacular piece should be put upon the stage.

In selecting the cast to present the Wallace-Yonge drama in the midst of this superb environment Klaw & Erlanger have chosen Richard Duhler for the title part. Mr. Duhler is a young actor of great physical beauty, his type ideally fitting the role of the young Hur. William J. Kelly, one of the most popular of the New York leading men will be the Messala in the fine cast, and Oscar Adye, one of England's best actors, comes from London to enact Simonides. Other important players are Mark Price, Emmet C. King, J. Arthur Young, Marion Barney, who will be the Irag; Cecil Kern, Lillian Lawrence, an old time Boston favorite; Rose Beaudet and Alice Haynes. A chorus of more than 150 trained singers will render the special music written for "Ben-Hur" by Edgar Sullivan Kelley, and an army of 400 trained supernumeraries will fill the scenes where crowds are necessary.

The engagement of "Ben-Hur" at the Boston Theatre is a limited one. During the season matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays each week.

GAME POSTPONED.

The football game between the U. S. S. North Carolina and the team from Fort McKinley at Portland, attraction, and Boston will thus have scheduled for the play grounds on Saturday afternoon, was called off owing to the condition of the field. The Fort McKinley team, with a good crowd of rooters came here in the morning train, and both teams were on the ground and watched the game between the High school and Rock-ester high. That was the second game during the afternoon and with a heavy rain falling it left the field in terrible condition, with the mud ankle deep in places and pools of water everywhere.

After the high school game was over there was a conference of managers, and the game was called off until Tuesday afternoon.

BOTH WERE INDICTED

John E. Michael of Exeter was one of the most attentive court listeners during the past week, but he is no longer in this city. Mr. Michael is the peddler who was shot in the neck at Northwood. He survived after rigorous treatment. Alzo Patterson, who Michael accused of firing the shot was indicted by the grand jury on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver. Michael remained in this city two days to ascertain if an indictment would be found. But he also learned that he, too, was indicted on the same charge. He then returned to Exeter.

THE PADUCAH SAILS FOR CUBA

The U. S. S. Paducah, Captain Mitchell, having on board the survey party for Cuba, sailed from the navy yard, at one o'clock Sunday afternoon. There was a heavy fog hanging over the harbor, and after picking her way down stream to the lower harbor, she dropped anchor, and will wait for clearing weather. The ship has had hard luck getting away from this station, being delayed by various events, the last the illness of her commander and the subsequent appointment of Commander Mitchell.

PERSONALS
